Drum and bugle corps and bands are scheduled to be in the parade to be led by the town and village officials and the color guard of the Orland Legion Post.

At the grove there will be all kinds of games and amusements with plenty of eats and refreshments. There will be free dancing in the evening with good music. Everyone is cordially invited to attend. Bring your family and friends and enjoy a real outing in the delightful Gee Grove.

Held By Spanish When Plane Is Forced Down

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Clark of Frankfort have learned of a tragic mishap which involved their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dahl of Champaign, Ill.

On July 24th Mrs. Dahl enlisted the aid of the United States embassy at Paris in freeing her husband who is being held in a Spanish insurgent jail.

Dahl, flying a pursuit plane for the Spanish government, was forced to bail out west of Madrid, July 12, when his ship was attacked by insurgent aircraft. He was captured after he reached the ground.

Mrs. Dahl, frequently breaking into tears, said American embassy officials had promised to do their utmost to secure her husband's freedom, altho, "the United States government vigorously opposed his going to Spain." She and Dahl have been married only six months.

Mokena Baseball Pennant Winners

The Mokena boys decisively beat St. Cyril to win the Independent League Pennant, by a score of 13-5.

George Lauffer pitched a brilliant game, striking out seventeen men. Our men sure got their bats to clicking for a total of 14 hits.

Dick Walsh started the 4th inning by clouting out a home run. Dick made a total of 3 hits out of 4 times at bat, but had to be taken out in the eighth inning because of a nasty spike wound. He was replaced by E. Bornet at first base who knocked out a two bagger for his 1 time at bat.

In addition to pitching a swell game G. Lauffer battled a thousand, getting four hits out of four times at bat. Many of our loyal fans from Mokena were along to see our boys play some real swell baseball. Thanks, fans, the boys sure appreciate it. We are still looking forward to that game with the married men's team.

Your daffy scribe wants to thank the boys on the team, both regular and subs, for the real sporting spirit they have shown. What say, fans, let's get behind our team as they are a gang of swell guys and real ball players. I am proud to be associated with them.

On behalf of the boys and myself I want to take this opportunity to thank John Balaz for his fine job of umpiring he has done and to further say we appreciate his giving his Sundays to help us. Let's give John a great big hand. So thanks John, we hope you have a swell trip and will be back with us soon. See all of you fans next Sunday.

This Sunday we travel to Troy to play the Troy A. C. at the Troy picnic grounds.

Reckless Speeders Arrested In Tinley

Last week three young men of Tinley Park were placed under arrest for extremely reckless driving thru the streets of the village.

Racing back and forth thru the main street at a speed of 70 to 80 miles an hour is absolutely uncalled for and is extremely dangerous. Life and property evidently mean very little to such a person and they should be disciplined most severely.

Police Chief C. A. Steinhagen, is to be commended for his prompt action in the apprehension of these reckless automobile drivers. Judge Wm. West of Tinley Park, executed the duties of his office with business like precision. One of the speeders drew a fine of $25, another $6 and the third one was granted a continuance until next Monday evening.

This sort of conduct on the part of some of the young citizens is inexcusable. Any repetition of such action in the future will be dealt with most severely under the full penalty of the law, it is said.

GLEN PETERSON, NEW LENOX TOWNSHIP FARMER INVENTS MACHINE TO BIND STRAW

Representatives of five agricultural machinery manufacturers were on hand, one each day of week, to see Glenn Peterson, Will County farmer residing in New Lenox township just outside of Marley put his new device for bundling straw as the combine cuts it, put to a practical test in the grainfields of his own and those of his neighbors this week.

Essentially simple, the invention consists of cleated canvas belts turning endlessly around a pair of rollers. The two belts are arranged in a sort of V, with the straw, ordinarily thrown out of the machine at this point, being received between the belts at the broad end of the V. As the cleated canvas belts hold and carry the straw to the narrow end of the V, the loose straw is packed until it will stay together when bound.

It is then dropped into a "packer" where more and more straw collects until enough is gathered to make a bundle, when the binder ties the bundle and drops, just as in an ordinary reaper.

The invention is expected to bring combine harvesting to its highest point of efficiency, with only two or three men, one of them driving the combine, necessary for the harvest, instead of the hordes of farmers and farm hands who have been pressed into service for shocking, hauling, feeding a threshing machine and stacking the straw under the pre-combine system.

Mr. Peterson has been working for two years to perfect his invention. Mechanically inclined from the time he was a boy, the inventor graduated from the Joliet High school in 1912 and opened a motorcycle agency. He also raced motorcycles at Ingalls Park motor cycle races. During the war he was in the U. S. army air service as an aviation mechanic.

After his return from the war, radio caught Mr. Peterson's fancy and he spent the long winter nights on the farm experimenting and constructing receiving sets. Up to the time he gave up building them three or four years ago, Mr. Peterson had constructed 250 sets, ranging from simple crystal devices to 10-tube outfits. He still services radios for neighboring farmers, some of whom still own sets constructed by Mr. Peterson and would not trade them for factory built machines.

Many years ago New Lenox township had another inventor whose invention is being used today in all threshing machines. The inventor was the late O. Holmes one time wagon maker with a shop in New Lenox for many years. His invention was the vibration movement now embodied in all threshing machines. The late Millis Knickerbocker also of New Lenox assisted Mr. Holmes in securing a patent for his invention, but unfortunately Mr. Holmes was unable to market his invention and after his patent rights had died out at the end of 17 years, some concern took up the idea, made a few changes, took out a new patent and the idea made millions, but Mr. Holmes did not even get so much as the credit of being the inventor of a device which revolutionized grain threshing the world over.

Editor's Family See Interesting Sights In West

The editor's family and Miss Dorothy Hall of Mokena are reporting a very interesting and wonderful time on their 5,000 mile vacation jaunt to the northwest. They have been visiting with Mrs. A. W. Campbell and family at Bothell, Washington. She is Mrs. Semmler's sister.

Upon arrival in Seattle, the visitors had their first thrill when they learned the Pacific fleet was in Puget Sound near Seattle. They had an opportunity of boarding the battleships and were escorted thru the ships by members of the crews. Monday they visited Mount Rainier. They also visited the "Whiz Fishery" at Seattle and saw a boat load of fish valued at $4500 being unloaded. The fish consisting of halibut, salmon and sole came from Alaska. First class fish bring 9 1/2 a pound, the weight running from 12 to 60 lbs. Fish under or over that weight are considered second class. In this shipment also was $500 worth of cod livers for cod liver oil for the Parke-Davis Drug Co.

The next leg of the trip will be Portland, Oregon, then the Nebeker ranch in Utah and then home. They expect to arrive home Sunday, August 8th.

Mokena Streets Improved With Stone Dressing

Several streets in Mokena have been given a complete top dressing of crushed stone and screenings. Shoulders along Front street have also been improved with stone and bad chuck holes between the street and sidewalks have been filled in. The improvements made have been badly needed and are much appreciated by the residents.

The club invites outsiders as well as its members to participate in this show. Further details will be given next week.

All members are requested to attend the next meeting, to be held in the home of Mrs. Walter Yunker.

Tinley Trims Chicago Ridge With 15-5 Score

The fighting spirit of Manager Baldwin's strong Tinley Park aggregation was evident last Sunday when the local lads came from behind to shell Chicago Ridge's hurlers from the mound with a nine run rally in the fifth inning. Final score of this free hitting contest was 15 to 5 in favor of Tinley.

George Lauffer Case Is Aired In Kankakee Court

Another chapter in the martial troubles of George and Gertrude Lauffer of Grant Park was aired last Wednesday in the justice court of Fred R. Smith in Kankakee when Lauffer was on trial for assault and battery charges.

Lauffer is a former Mokena resident and figured in many court cases here.

On July 6th his present wife said, he kicked her out of the house, locked the door and made her sleep on the porch all night. She further stated he threw water on her and took a hammer and broke three windows in her car.

George, defended by Attorney Donald Gray, accused his wife of being a "drunkard" and intimated that she and a roomer were "too d-thick." He further stated that he lived in mortal fear of her and that he was afraid she would attempt to slit his throat some night.

Justice Smith found him guilty of the offenses as charged and assessed a fine of $24.75. Lauffer immediately signed an appeal bond and signified his intentions of appealing. Assistant State's Attorney Victor Lauridsen prosecuted the case.

Hearing on the merits of an injunction restraining him from keeping his wife out of the house or from selling or disposing of his property is scheduled for Tuesday in the circuit court.

Chicken Dinner

A new chicken dinner establishment to be known as "Hi-View" has been opened at Lincoln Highway and 82nd avenue in the Lincoln Estates.

Opens New Tavern

A. E. Buessel has opened a new tavern on the former J. V. Hall place on Wolf road north of Mokena, just outside of the village limits.

Palos In Line For Modern Community Center

For the first time in years Palos Park dwellers will be able to hold their community affairs late this fall in some place besides their homes and the few clearings of their wooded village. A combined gymnasium and auditorium is to be built at 123rd st., and 89th avenue behind the weather-beaten old community hall which is now unusable except for one room.

It will be the first major improvement program in the village's history. To finance the construction, a $10,000 bond issue has just been voted by the citizens. There were eight approving ballots for each negative one. The money is already available, as the entire issue was tentatively contracted for prior to the voting.

The program will continue with a remodeling of the old community hall, it is hoped, to provide quarters for the mayor, village clerk, post-office, library and police - the last having "space for jail cage" on the plans. This reconstruction depends upon getting a $15,000 PWA grant which is now being proposed.

An effort was made several years ago to obtain government aid for the second part of the improvement program. At that time help was refused because the village did not have title to the property. Now title has been secured by acquisition of bonds issued by the defunct Palos Park Improvement Association, which built the original community hall before a charter had been issued for the village.

Completion of the gymnasium-auditorium, a brick building 70x45 feet in size, with a stage at one end, will be a triumph for Mayor Mahaffey. The project has been a goal during many of his years as a village officer. His participation in village affairs dates back to the founding of the community as a village. He helped organize the village, was a commissioner continuously until 1930 and has been Mayor since then.

The present commissioners who have been working with Mr. Mahaffey on the building program are Charles Heidel, treasurer; Harry Crowley, William Millington and George V. Hermanson. Other village officers are Frank G. Kling, clerk, and Alice Greenacre, attorney.

The architect for the improvement is a native of Palos Park, Edward M. Toutelot Jr. On the building committee are Mahaffey, Robert J. Kotrba, Richard Tait, Edward Rosewater, George L. Stebbins and Fred Muhausen.

The first recent addition to services for the 450 persons in Palos Park is the village library, which was started last year with WPA help. It's headquarters are the one usable room in the old community hall. There it is open five days a week and on one afternoon a story hour is conducted for children.

There are now more than 700 books on the shelves, many of them new. In addition to volumes provided by the WPA and ones donated by individuals many have been purchased with money from a memorial fund established by Mrs. Lorado Taft. She left the fund to aid a Palos Park library years ago, but they have never been used, as there was never a suitable place for a library.

Mrs. Freitag and Frances Ceithaml helped entertain the nurses at the Speedway with ice cream and cookies also. Mrs. Freitag was a guest at the Midlothian Legion Auxiliary birthday party.

After the close of the meeting all marched to their places at the table to the tune of "You'll Be There". A short prayer was given by our chaplain Georgine Mager, and the party proceeded. Cake and ice cream, iced tea and mints were served. Happy Birthday was sung to Mrs. Freitag and a surprise handkerchief shower was held for her; each lady reading her birthday wish and two juniors, Caroline Brennen and Helen Carr presenting the gift.

The next gift to be presented was one which came from the junior past president Trudie Swisher accompanied with a verse written and read by her to our out-going president Ruth Freitag. This gift was a beautiful reed tray and with it came a gold compact from the auxiliary with the auxiliary emblem on it.

Mrs. Freitag expressed her happiness in her complete surprise.

A verse was then read to our incoming president, Mamie Brandau and written by Trudie Swisher; also a beautiful vase was presented to her on behalf of the Unit.

Our rehabilitation chairman, Frances Rowden then presented Frances Ceithaml with her gift for bringing in the greatest number of silk stockings for Hine's hospital during the year. Her prize was a beautiful red and white bead handbag with a compact. The gift was tied with a silk stocking bow.

The rest of the evening was spent in playing beans and many nice prizes awarded. All had a very pleasant time.

Next meeting will be August 13 and final arrangements made for installation of new officers. This meeting will also be our president's last to preside as president.

We'll expect you next meeting.

SYNOPSIS

Brooke Reyburn visits the office of Jed Stewart, a lawyer, to discuss the terms of an estate she has inherited from Mrs. Mary Armada Dane. Unwittingly she overhears Jed talking to Mark Trent, nephew of Mrs. Dane who has been disinherited. Mrs. Dane had lived at Lookout House, a huge structure by the sea, built by her father and divided into two, for her and Mark's father. Brooke had been a fashion expert, and Mrs. Dane, a "shut-in," hearing her on the radio, had invited her to call and developed a deep affection for her. Jed discloses that Mrs. Dane had threatened to disinherit him if he married Lola, from whom he is now divorced. He says he does not trust Henri and Clotilde Jacques, Mrs. Dane's servants. He says he is not interested in an offer of Brooke's to share the estate with him. Leaving her department store job, Brooke refuses an offer to "go stepping" with Jerry Field, a carefree young man who wants to marry her. At a family conference she learns she must live at Lookout House alone, since Lucette, her younger sister who is taking her job, her brother, Sam, a young playwright, and her mother plan to stay in the city. Jed and Mark are astounded when they hear from Mrs. Gregory, a family friend, that she had witnessed a hitherto unknown will with Henri and Clotilde two weeks before Mrs. Dane died. Brooke had arrived just as she was leaving. Jed suggests that Mark open his part of Lookout House to Jed and Mark and try to find out about the will. Jed agrees to stay with him. Mark accepts Brooke's invitation for a family Thanksgiving dinner at Lookout. Mrs. Reyburn announces on Thanksgiving eve that she has been invited to England. Sam and Lucette decide to move in with Brooke and Sam plans to produce a new play locally. After the Thanksgiving dinner Brooke tells Mark that little of Mrs. Dane's silver collection is left. Jerry Field and his sister Daphne drop in and announce they will be neighbors for the winter. Sam adds them to the cast of his play. Later Inspector Harrison of the local police visits Mark and is informed about the missing will and silver. As Harrison leaves, Lola arrives. She announces that she and her new husband, Bert Hunt, have started a neighborhood filling station. Mark almost makes a break about the missing will and Brooke is suspicious.

"You're a darling, Brooke. I appreciate now the color, and the sense of 'God's in His Heaven, all's right with the world' you brought into Mary Amanda Dane's life. I had intended to start a boycott against you and your family here because you had cut Mark out of his inheritance, but he asked me to be nice to you. I adore that boy. I would do anything for him. He lived in a nightmare of humiliation with a wife who came home night after night barely able to keep her feet. Why, why can't women realize that it's their privilege to keep up the standards of decency? He stood by her, though, and held his head high, and wouldn't allow his soul to be warped by the experience."

Brooke left her town car in the garage when she reached Lookout House. She was thoughtfully drawing off her gloves as she approached the garden door of her house. A stream of light laid a golden path on leafless shrubs and graveled walk. A woman was at the door! A woman in a fox cape. Mrs. Hunt! Talking with Henri.

Brooke stepped into the purple shadow of a spruce. She could see and she could hear:

"If you keep a level head we can't lose, Henri."

The man's murmur was indistinct. He closed the door softly as the woman went down the steps. She flung a furtive look at the windows of the house before she vanished in the dusk.

"That seems to be that," Brooke said to herself, before she started around Mark Trent's house that she might enter her own front door unobserved by a possible watcher in the garden.

As she entered the living-room at Lookout House, she rang for Henri. The green parrot squawked, "Stop!", ruffled his feathers, and hopped up and down in his cage. She was standing near the fire, letter opener in hand, looking over the mail she had found on the desk when the butler entered.

"Did anyone call, Henri?"

"On the phone, Miss?"

"At the house."

Henri opened the door of the parrot's cage. Mr. Micawber hopped to his shoulder and began tweaking his ear.

"Never mind about the parrot, Henri. Answer my question."

"But I take him out like this for a walk around three times a day, Miss; the old madame wanted him to have a change of scene. Not a person called at this house. Were you expecting someone?"

"Yes, the lady who is to have charge of selling tickets for the play phoned that she might come this afternoon. Probably she couldn't make it. That's all."

Her eyes followed him as he left the room with the green bird muttering on his shoulder. Always she had distrusted the man of whom Mary Amanda Dane had been so fond. Why should he have lied to her about Mrs. Hunt's presence at the garden door of Lookout House? Because the woman was there to see him of course. With her thoughts still on Henri and his evasions, she slit one of the envelopes in her hand and drew out the letter it contained. All thought of the butler fled as she saw that the letterhead was that of the firm for which she had been fashion adviser.

Dear Miss Reyburn,—she read—

Any chance of your wanting a job? We are opening a dress shop at Palm Beach under the name of Carston's Inc. Very swank, very expensive. Celeste will be business manager. We'd like you to be top mannequin—with a salary, of course, and percentage on the sales of the frocks you model. We'll put on a fashion show later in the season. Society girls as mannequins. We'll open this year January first. Don't say "No" until you think it over. Come in and we'll give you more details. Celeste and the directors are all for you on the job.

Yours truly—

Brooke's face flushed as she read the letter. Of course she couldn't accept—some girl who needed the money should have the chance—but it was thrilling to know that she was wanted. Palm Beach. All sunshine and fragrance and flowers. What a contrast to this stern and rockbound coast with the pound of surf, the wail of the siren, and the cries of gulls, to which she was anchored for the present.

The contents of the letter glowed in her mind as she dressed for the evening. It was heart-warming to know that her hard work had been appreciated.

Not until later, as, snuggled in a big chair before the fire in the living-room, she waited for Lucette and Sam to change for dinner, did the memory of Mrs. Hunt's presence at the garden door recur to her. Now it surged to the top of her mind. With unseeing eyes on the green parrot back in his cage, she thought of the woman's warning to her, of her threat to Mark Trent—it had been a threat, in spite of that sugary "darling." What had she meant? What object could Henri have had in denying her presence?

"How Perfectly Grand!"

Why should the remembrance of the low voice declaring: "If you keep a level head we can't lose, Henri," send icy prickles crawling up her spine and coasting down?

Brooke thoughtfully smoothed the lace of her dinner frock, lace the very shade of the high lights in her hair. If this were a movie, there might be a trick cupboard in the green paneling in which the silver had been hidden, but there was nothing so exciting here. She had been at Lookout House when the walls and trim were painted.

"Calling car 5! Car 5! Car 5!"

The frenzied call brought Brooke to her feet, set her heart thumping madly. Then she laughed as the parrot with a squawk preened his green and yellow feathers. She made a disdainful face at the chuckling bird.

"Mr. Micawber, sometime when you yell like that I'll forget that I'm a perfect lady and wring your neck. Sam, did you teach the parrot that police radio call?" she demanded, as her brother entered the room.

His eyes twinkled behind the lenses of his horn-rimmed spectacles. He pulled a piece of cracker from the pocket of his blue coat. "Sure, I taught him. I've been at work on that bird ever since I came. Here, stout fellow!"

The parrot twisted his head completely round, blinked lidless eyes, before he nipped at the reward which Sam had thrust through the bars of his square cage.

"That bird's a peach, Brooke. You can teach him anything if you try hard enough. Boy, I wish I had him in the play. He'd show some of the stiffies how to speak their lines."

"Who's the biggest problem?"

"Daphne Field. She's pretty enough but dumb. She'll stop the show, all right, but not because she's an actress. Hers is a feed-part for the leading woman. She's one of those darnfool girls who go off their heads in a crisis—in real life, I mean, not in the play. Glad she's not in the lead. Laura Crane, who is, is good; she's got plenty on the ball."

"How is Jerry in his part?"

"Okay, but I don't like the man who is playing the male lead. He's a spotlight hog. I wish Mark Trent would take it. He's just the type and a natural. I think he's great—and—he's darn friendly, but—" Sam leaned against the mantel and faced his sister. "Have you ever thought that he is not particularly keen about the Reyburn family?"

Brooke said thoughtfully:

"Would he be likely to be keen, as you express it, about a family which was spending money that he felt should be his? I think he has behaved decently."

"Who said he hadn't? I have a kind of feeling, that's all. He told Jed Stewart that we might take anything we liked from his house for stage setting. But all things considered, I'll be glad when the show is over; sometimes I think I've written a smash hit and sometimes that the play is just a lot of tripe. I don't hope for one or two first-string critics to give me the low-down on it. Anyway, a manager who liked those two sketches I wrote for the Workshop is coming for the opening to give it the once-over, and he'll bring a New York producer."

"Really, Sam! How perfectly grand! We—"

"Hi! Soft pedal! Here comes Lucette. I don't want her to know that they'll be in front, it might rattle her."

There was the sound of running feet on the stairs, a gay voice singing. Lucette dashed into the room. Her black hair was silky; her thin frock was only a shade redder than her lips and cheeks and fingernails. She dropped to the rug in front of the fire, hugged her knees, and looked up at her sister.

"How soon do we eat, Brooke? I'm starving."

"Henri waits till he hears you tumble downstairs before he announces dinner. What kind of a day did you have?"

"Hectic. Every woman in the city apparently has gone sports-clothes minded. They've stopped boasting of the extreme age of their frocks and hats and have begun to spend real money. They are buying for themselves and for Christmas gifts in spite of the fact that prices are being stepped up. I should worry. I get a sliver of commission on my sales. The girl who has taken your place had just one of those days, today. Madame Celeste was on the warpath. I brought Jerry Field down in the car. He was a gob of gloom when he came in and you were not here. By the way, who do you think runs that new filling-station in the white cottage?"

"Mark Trent's ex-wife and her husband!"

CHAPTER VI

Brooke stood before the fire in the softly lighted living-room at Lookout House. Three days had passed since she had received the letter offering her the Palm Beach position, since she had heard that the Hunts were the proprietors of the filling-station she had been patronizing. She had refused promptly the business offer and had dropped it from her mind, but she couldn't forget the other. Sometimes she wondered if she would ever think of anything else. Questions were everlastingly popping up. Had Lola Hunt gone to Mark Trent's house to tell him about it, or had he known already? Why later had the woman been talking so confidentially to Henri at the garden door of Lookout House? What had she meant by: "If you keep a level head we can't lose, Henri"? What was behind that snapped off "wit" of Mark Trent's?

Why was she spending a moment's thought on Mark Trent's problems? Hadn't she plenty of her own? She frowned at the empty gilt cage. Where was Mr. Micawber? When she had come in this afternoon, Henri had been wringing his hands. He had gone completely French as he chattered, but she had gathered from the jargon that when he had stepped out on the lawn with the parrot on his shoulder, the door had banged behind him and the frightened bird had flown away. It wasn't that she cared for the parrot, she detested him, but Mrs. Dane had loved him and she felt as if she had broken faith with her benefactress.

"Wake up, sister!" Lucette prodded from the doorway. "Sam and I have been staring at you for three minutes, trying thought transference. Nothing doing. We couldn't penetrate your skull. You've been scowling as if addressing a hall full of women who refused to rally to your one-time battle-cry:

"Old age isn't necessary, it is nothing but a germ! Watch out that you don't pick it up!"

Brooke laughed. "I had no idea that the precepts of her elders made such an impression on our little sister, had you, Sam?"

"No. I—Where is Mr. Micawber?"

Brooke told him.

"No kidding, what do you know about that! I'll bet Henri let him go."

"He wouldn't do that, Sam, though he should have known better than to go to the open door with him. Mrs. Dane wouldn't have the bird's wings clipped; of course he would fly when he got the chance. Henri takes all the care of him, thank heaven. I think he adores him, if he can adore anything. Curious, Mr. Micawber likes Henri and you; he doesn't try to conceal the fact that he dislikes Lucette and me. I'm really troubled about the parrot. He may be flying outside, and Mrs. Dane was so careful never to expose him to draughts. Who is calling, I wonder?" Brooke asked, as the butler passed in the hall on his way to the front door.

Answers

1. A census of population was taken in this country in 1930 and the next will be taken in 1940. Any other figures that may be given are simply estimates. The United States had a population of 122,775,046 in 1930; the estimated population on July 1, 1935, was 127,521,000, showing an increase of nearly five millions in five years.

2. The world's longest air line is that between Amsterdam, Holland, and the Dutch East Indies, 9,000 miles away. There are two departures weekly at each end of it.

3. The eugenics department of the Carnegie institution estimates that 30,000,000 people have lived since the beginning of recorded history, some 6,000 or 7,000 years ago.

4. For Cuba, Honduras, Mexico, Nicaragua, Venezuela, Costa Rica, Colombia and San Salvador. This coinage totaled 72,180,449 pieces.

5. In 1907 Selig opened the first California studio in Los Angeles. The first picture was the "Count of Monte Cristo" in 1,000 feet. Soon after that time other motion picture studios in New York opened California studios.

6. More plant and animal life per square mile is found in the cold waters of the temperate and frigid zones than in the ocean waters of the tropics.

7. The Maxim silencer is a tubular device attached to the muzzle of a firearm that renders the discharge practically noiseless. The device has an interior spiral which, permitting the ejection of the bullet, retards the explosion of the gases by causing them to rotate before escaping.

8. Because of the peculiar conformation of the shark's mouth, it is necessary for it to turn on its back when attacking an object at the surface of the water. A shark's mouth opens below its snout on the under side of its body and it is, therefore, unable to bite anything directly above it without turning over.

A Refreshing Drink

IN THE summertime, cool drinks are so grateful to parched young throats. Here is a cold cereal drink you can mix in a jiffy. It is very refreshing and nourishing to boot.

Quick Cooler.

2 level teaspoons Instant Postum
1 cup cold milk

Combine ingredients in beverage shaker or in glass jar with tight top. Shake thoroughly until all cereal is dissolved. Sweeten to taste and serve. Serves one.—Adv.

OF INTEREST TO THE HOUSEWIFE

Sauce for Meats.—For a snappy and delicious sauce to serve with meats, mix one cup apple sauce, ½ cup horseradish and one cup whipped cream.

Shade for Ferns.—House ferns need a light well-drained soil and plenty of water. They thrive better in partial shade.

The Measuring Cup.—Grease the measuring cup before measuring sirup or molasses and the ingredients will not stick to the cup.

Removing Water Spots.—Equal amounts of turpentine and linseed oil mixed together will remove the white spots from furniture, caused by water.

Burnt Saucepans.—If the bottom of a saucepan is burnt, sprinkle salt over it and leave for an hour or two. Then add a little water, rub well, and when washed out the marks will have gone.

Why MORE FARM TRACTORS ARE EQUIPPED WITH FIRESTONE TRACTOR TIRES THAN ALL OTHER MAKES OF TIRES COMBINED

Farmers KNOW
Ground Grip Tires
PROVIDE GREATER TRACTION
INCREASED DRAWBAR PULL
SAVE MORE TIME AND MONEY

NOW THE Amazing
New

Firestone
GROUND GRIP TIRE
THAT PROVIDES STILL GREATER
TRACTION AND SAVINGS

FIRESTONE has done it again! All you have to do is to examine the amazing new Firestone Ground Grip Tractor Tire and you will quickly understand why it provides still greater traction, greater drawbar pull, and makes greater savings in time and fuel. The basic Firestone patented Ground Grip tread design has been retained, but the extra heavy bars of rubber are spaced wider and built higher. The tire cleans itself still better, providing much greater traction.

Farmers everywhere are welcoming this new tire, for tests show that tractors equipped with it consume up to 50% less fuel, as compared with tractors equipped with steel lugged wheels. With this amazing new tire you get up to 30% more available drawbar pull on dry sod — up to 40% more on stubble — and up to 50% more on wet plowed ground, than with any other tire made.

Only Firestone can build all this extra traction into a tractor tire because only Firestone has the patented extra construction features of Gum-Dipped cords which are stronger to resist the strain of heavy pulling, and two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread which bind the tread and cord body into one inseparable unit. The tread is made of specially compounded rubber which resists the action of sun, rain, and snow. See this amazing new tire at your Firestone Implement Dealer, Tire Dealer or Auto Supply & Service Store today. You will want a set on your tractor so you can make the savings that only Firestone Ground Grip Tractor Tires provide.

Listen to the Voice of Firestone, Monday evenings over Nationwide N. B. C. Red Network

If you have not received a copy of the new Firestone Farm Tire Catalog, please send your name and address to The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, or Los Angeles, California, and a copy will be mailed to you promptly.

Still Deep in the Red

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

For more than six months Congress has sat in virtually continuous session. What work has it completed?

With one exception, little that the average citizen can recall. And that exception is by no means novel. It is merely a continuance of the free-handed spending of the people's money, which for the seventh consecutive year has kept our national finances deep, deep in the red.

At the close of the fiscal year, on June 30, for example, the national deficit—which means the excess of expenditure over income—was approximately $2,800,000,000.

And the public debt—which means postponed taxes—exceeded $36,000,000,000.

There have, of course, been promises at Washington of efforts to eliminate extravagance, and with it such staggering cost-sheets.

But, somehow, the evidence of financial restraint has been lacking. Appropriation bills have remained lavish, "nuisance taxes" have been extended, "must" legislation for economy has been absent.

All this public spending—as every housewife knows—brings inevitably in its train higher costs of living. Rising food prices constitute today an emphatic reminder of that fact.

On Congress rests the responsibility for spending the people's money. But that responsibility should not be one-sided.

Congress should accept the responsibility for saving some of the people's money for them as well.

And on the evidence of such responsibility members of Congress may expect to be judged when next they appeal to their employers—the men and women who foot the bills—for a vote of confidence at the polls.

Insane Monarchs

Europe had more insane monarchs in power during the last half of the eighteenth century than in any other similar period in its history. During this time nine of them mounted the thrones of seven countries. An interesting one was Abdul Hamid I, who reigned over Turkey from 1773 to 1789, writes Alan B. Cox, New York city, in Collier's Weekly. Before he was made sultan, Abdul had been locked in a cage for 43 years.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Truth" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 25.

The Golden Text was, "The truth of the Lord endureth for ever. Praise ye the Lord" (Psalms 117:2).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "O Lord, thou art my God; I will exalt thee, I will praise thy name; for thou hast done wonderful things; thy counsels of old are faithfulness and truth" (Isaiah 25:1).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "If thought is started at the strong claim of Science for the supremacy of God, or Truth, and doubts the supremacy of good, ought we not, contrariwise, to be astounded at the vigorous claims of evil and doubt them, and no longer think it natural to love sin and unnatural to forsake it,—no longer imagine evil to be ever-present and good absent? Truth should not seem so surprising and unnatural as error, and error should not seem so real as truth" (pp. 130, 131).

Dairymen Get
Raise In Milk
Price August 1

Beginning August 1, 1937, Pure Milk Association members will receive seventy-five cents per hundred pounds for their base milk as a premium over average monthly condensed milk prices, f. o. b. country plants, receiving stations and loading platforms.

This will be 25c per 100 lbs. increase in the premium now paid for quality milk which is now 50c per 100 lbs. over average monthly condensed price for 100 percent of base.

The price received by the Pure Milk Association members so far during July, 1937, is $1.917 per 100 lbs. of base milk.

However, the agreement between Pure Milk Association members and distributors calls for a peg in the condensary price as follows:

Low—$1.40 per 100 lbs.; High—$1.60 per 100 lbs. which means that during the life of this new price agreement beginning August first 1937, Pure Milk Association members will receive: not less than $2.15 per 100 lbs. and not more than $2.35 per 100 lbs. for their base milk at country plants, loading platforms, or cooling stations. All other terms of their contract with the increase in the price of farm labor, not to mention other items of expense because of compliance with distributors remain unchanged.

Present high prices of feeds and the Grade A health law, all of which added to the cost of production of quality milk by Pure Milk Association members, are responsible for this increase.

Campaign Started
To Guarantee
Right To Work

A direct campaign to guarantee the American right to work and to freedom and to protect individuals from violence in the present industrial struggle was formulated by the Citizens National Committee at a session was held in New York on Friday, July 23.

Rev. John H. Stanton of Johnstown, Pa., Chairman of the temporary committee recently established to serve as the preliminary to a far-flung national organization, in announcing the meeting, emphasized that the group was fighting solely for the impartial protection of all citizens, under the law.

Five fundamental principles were laid down as the keystone of the national campaign, Chairman Stanton explained, quoting the five as follows:

"That the Committee condemns the lawlessness and violence which have marked the present wave of Strikes throughout the country.

"That we are opposed to any group, whether on the side of labor or management, which invites or is responsible for violence in defiance of the Constitution of the United States.

"That we believe it the duty of the Government to guarantee by impartial enforcement of law, the right of every citizen to work or strike as he may choose, and to refrain from joining any labor organization, as he may desire.

"We believe that labor unions and employers should be equally responsible before the law.

"We will oppose and will continue to oppose activities which are un-American, Communist and destructive to the welfare of our Nation."

The Committee is being financed by private contributions from the general public, sent to George C. Rutledge, Treasurer, Box HP, Johnstown, Pa.

Special attention will be devoted to enlisting the support of the farmer, the white-collar worker and the small, independent business man, in the belief that the great middle class, which constitutes the majority of our population, will suffer most in industrial labor conflict, with less chance for self-protection.

The first point on the Committee's program for the Friday meeting was the working out of the national organization, so as to provide representation from every State and to make it possible for all organizations concerned with maintenance of American democracy and freedom to participate.

The Committee was established at Johnstown on July 15, at a spontaneous meeting of representatives of some 14 States, 73 citizens and associations of organizations and associations. Its members, in addition to Chairman Stanton, are: W. C. Woodward, South Yardmouth, Mass. Ormsby McHarg, Vice-Chairman, New York City; Rembert G. Smith, Afton, Okla.; Don J. Kirkley, Publisher of The National Farm News, Washington, D. C.; George C. Rutledge, Treasurer, and Lawrence W. Campbell Secretary, Johnstown, Pa.

National headquarters have not yet been chosen for the organization, Headquarters are being maintained temporarily at Johnstown, where the mass movement came to a focal point in recent disorders in which State officials prevented a majority of laborers from returning to work. The national committee invites correspondence and suggestions from all interested persons or organizations.

Re-Employment
vs. Political Jobs

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

From various sources at Washington and elsewhere, America is hearing reports of increased private employment.

This is a refreshing contrast to the recurrent reports of more and more political jobs which we have grown so accustomed to hearing.

It means much more to the progress, the well-being and the general happiness of the nation. Why?

Because constructive employment, whether in business, in agriculture, in manufacturing, or in any other field, means not only increased production, but—through the earned income of the workers—ability to consume the results of American enterprise. This, in turn, means more jobs, more income for those who hold them, and higher standards of living.

Political job-holding, on the other hand, means only a drain on the worker's earnings, bringing neither him nor his family an adequate return for the cut it takes out of his pay-envelope. It creates neither goods nor real opportunity.

Although encouraging, the employment gain reflected by official figures is not as great nor as swift as the American people could wish. But it is apparent, and many students of the current scene believe it will continue.

Let's hope they are right. Let's hope that nothing is done to divert this progress of re-employment from its natural and promised course. Let's hope that it is permitted to develop into the strong movement which represents normal employment and normal production and normal consumption in America.

Throughout their history, the American people have constituted a nation of productive workers whether in the field, the office or the shop. Their dominant desire is to resume constructive activities.

In that way, they realize, lie both progress and recovery.

Illinois Fence for New York Fair

NEW YORK (Special).—Illinois-made fencing is being shipped to the New York World's Fair for enclosure of the 389.8 acres comprising the central exhibit area. This was learned when Grover Whalen, President of the Fair Corporation, announced the award of a first fencing contract to the Cyclone Fence Company, whose New York offices are at 370 Lexington Avenue.

Officials of the manufacturing firm announced that its Waukegan plant was shipping the fencing and that installation would start as soon as the first steel reached the 1216 1/2-acre exposition site on Flushing Meadow.

The contract price of the nine-foot steel fence installed, complete with gates and concrete footings at ten-foot centers, as derived from figures submitted by pre-qualified bidders, is $32,812. About three miles of fence are required to enclose the central exhibit area along three sides and down to the Flushing river.

Immediate enclosure of the tract was made necessary, Mr. Whalen said, by the great and varied construction work that is already taking place on the site two years in advance of the Fair's opening date. The Illinois-made fence will inclose all of the Transportation Zone of the exposition and the area that will be dominated by the two Theme Centre wonders, the Perisphere and Trylon.

BUILDING TESTS
WALLS FOR FAIR

NEW YORK (Special).—Although the opening date of the New York World's Fair is still almost two years away, the Fair site already has one building that mystifies all persons who pass that way and one that is of great interest to the contractors and builders of the whole country. The big sign says it is the "test building."

The building can be made to do a lot of things just short of a late dance step. It can be made to twist, heave, buckle, sag or otherwise contort, all at the will of the Fair's engineers. It has a sawed-off tower arrangement on one end. Some sections of its walls are dazzling under the sun and are, obviously, encrusted with bits of broken glass. Its four walls, in fact, comprise 43 different set-ups of material, supports and surface coatings. When its day is done it will be made to collapse by the turn of a screw.

The unique building is typical of nothing other than itself, say Fair officials, since it is just a set of walls, upon which to try out the merits of various types of wall coating and stucco treatments.

The durability, appearance and structural peculiarities of walls are of great importance to the Fair, since its 300 buildings will require around 15,000,000 square feet of such enclosures.

The interior of this "wall laboratory" is given over to the Corporation's illumination engineers and their experimentation with new lighting devices.

HOW NEW YORK FAIR MOVES BIG TREES BY HUNDREDS

NEW YORK (Special).—As the housewife repots geraniums or the gardener repots berry bushes, so does the New York World's Fair 1939 Corporation transplant stately trees from five states to the 1216 1/2-acre exposition site. The Fair's landscape engineers explain that the moving of the big trees differs from the replanting of small shrubs only in the matter of size, and that modern mechanical aids make possible the creation of a mature-looking park on the newly made land of Flushing Meadow.

Shown at the top of accompanying photographs is a grown maple that has just been restored to upright position after a 120-mile ride on a specially-built truck.

Note truck's winch and the secure balling of earth about the tree roots. In the centre is a 35-foot Norway maple, 12 tons weight, moving the last few yards to its new home by means of the forward gear of a modern tree mover. All trees shown, a number of the 474 veterans moved this spring, are new to the great expanse of filled land. The Fair will move 10,000 trees and 250,000 shrubs.

Shown, just above, on the bay hunter is Harvey D. Gibson, President of the Manufacturers Trust Company and Chairman of the Fair's Finance Committee. Up on the handsome grey and speaking to a landscape engineer is Grover Whalen, President of the Fair Corporation, during a horseback tour of the site.

Is this earth made new? 2. Peter 3:13. Nevertheless we, according to His promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwellth righteousness. The Lord said He would create a new earth Isa. 65:17. John saw the new earth in a vision, Rev. 21:1 and 21:2. John saw the Holy city, new Jerusalem coming down from God out of heaven prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. Can you imagine a city 315 miles to a side long? Well that is the size of that city so beautiful that nothing can compare with it. The 12 gates were 12 pearls, the streets were pure gold. No wonder God says eye hath not seen nor ear heard, the things that God hath prepared for them that love him. 1 Cor. 2:9. The new earth shall remain forever. Isa. 66:22. Rev. 22:5. No sin shall ever enter there for we will have to be a righteous people to enter there. We shall build and plant in the new earth. Isa. 65:21, but will not have to labor as we labor here. There will be no thorns or weeds there, nothing but beauty. There shall be no death nor sorrow. Rev. 21:4. We shall know as we are known. The blind shall see and the deaf hear. Isa. 35:5-9. Is it not worth while working for?

There shall be no night there for the Lord God giveth light. John saw all these things and has revealed them unto us as our future reward. Blessed are they that do His commandments, that they may have a right to the tree of life and may enter in thru the gates into the city. Rev. 22:14.

Tinley Wallops Chicago Ridge With 15 to 5 Score

Tinley managed to push over two runs in the first frames while the boys from the Ridge were pounding Homerding for five runs. Pat settled down after the second inning keeping the hits well scattered. In the meantime his mates took matters into their own hands and proceeded to send hits in every direction. Sorenson led the fifth inning uprising by pounding out two doubles that scored five of the runs. Marti and Ryan each got three hits a piece to lead the Tinley hitters.

Once on the bases the local lads ran wild. Due to timely hitting few men were left stranded. The Ridge hurlers were unsteady throughout the contest and issued numerous free passes. Homerding was helped out of two spots by sparkling plays on the infield which netted two double killings. Thus did the Parkers keep their promises to avenge the previous week's defeat.

Tinley is on a new winning streak and will seek to extend their season's total when they meet the newly formed Midlothian Cardinals. Midlothian and Tinley are old rivals. Any contest between these two communities has always proved a bang-up battle. Don't miss Tinley's homecoming next Sunday, August 1st, at Schmidt's field. Game time is 2:30 p. m.

Will County Cattle Bring Top Price

Chicago, July 27 — A. F. Price, Will county farm and live stock feeder, was on the Chicago market today with a consignment of beef heifers which brought one of the high prices of the trade for stock of this class.

His shipment consisted of a drove of Aberdeen-Angus heifers brought $15.50 per cwt. at an average weight of 818 pounds. They were fed for market on Mr. Price's farm near Grant Park.

The Chicago cattle market went to a new seasonal high point yesterday, with an extreme top of $17.00 per cwt., the best price for the month of July since 1920 and the highest for any month since December, 1928. There was also a new high on yearling cattle, the peak rising to $16.85 per cwt. for this class of cattle.

Hogs moved up yesterday to the highest quotation in nearly nine years with a peak price of $13.10. This was an eleven year high point in the hog business for July.

Grasshoppers And Army Worms Damage Crops

Our Cook County farmers should check very carefully their grasshopper infestation on alfalfa and army worms in oats, so warns our Farm Adviser O. G. Barrett.

The grasshoppers are small as yet, being only half to three-fourths of an inch long. Their eating will increase with their size for the next six wks. It is estimated that grasshopper infestation on alfalfa to the extent of 15 per square yard will eat the equivalent of one ton per day on forty acres. The second cutting of alfalfa unless entirely consumed by then, will be ready for cutting soon. Possibly the worst thing that we can do is to cut the alfalfa for then there is nothing left except the young shoots and they will strip those shoots as fast as they appear, many cases being known of their killing the crop. The young alfalfa seedlings which are just getting started will suffer probably the most from our infestation.

The case in Cook County is more to be worried about for the reason that it is not severe enough so all of our farmers will enter into the control. One farmer poisoning his crop of grasshoppers is not as effective as we would like to see if none of his neighbors take care of theirs.

In cutting the alfalfa a strip or several strips which will attract the grasshoppers, might be let and in those strips the poison bait can be used. The bait for grasshoppers should be made at the rate of 100 pounds of bran, four pounds of poison, either Paris green or white arsenic mixed with 2 gallons of unused thin cheap cylinder oil, same to be mixed thoroughly and spread on the ground at the rate of 10 pounds per acre.

The control of grasshoppers is more or less of a community problem and for this reason the government has appropriated a sum for the purchase of poison and your Farm Adviser, knowing your needs, has on hand for you the poison which costs you only a few cents to pay for the handling and packaging.

Army worms or cut worms in the oats should be given consideration and may easily be poisoned. If the oats are cut, these fellows will march into the adjacent corn or other grain field. They may be poisoned in the same manner as grasshoppers except cheap molasses should be used instead of the oil. The difference too is that the grasshopper bait must be spread very early in the morning while the army worm bait must be spread in the evening just a bit before dark.

This poisoning is rather inexpensive and should cost not more than 20c to 25c per acre and in some cases does not need the whole acreage but only in strips which brings the total cost to a rather negligible amount as compared to the cost of feeding.

We must remember too that grasshoppers will be with us and feed for several weeks. This brood of the worms of course will not be here long but can do a lot of damage while they are and therefore in both cases it needs your immediate attention.

Perry Completes Term As Master In Chancery

Representative Joseph Sam Perry, Democrat, completed his term as Master in Chancery of the Circuit Court of DuPage County on Saturday, July 24th, and was succeeded by Herbert A. Grofelf, Republican, whose term began Monday, July 26th.

Representative Perry successfully managed the campaign of Circuit Judge, Max A. Allaben in June, 1933, who thereupon became the first Democratic Circuit Judge to ever be elected in the 16th Judicial Circuit. Judge Allaben then appointed Rep. Perry as Master in Chancery for a term of two years on July 24, 1933, giving him the distinction of being the first Democrat to ever hold that office in DuPage County. He was re-appointed for another 2 year term on July 24th, 1935. Judge Allaben died a year ago and it has been a foregone conclusion since that time the two remaining Judges, being Republicans, would appoint a new Master.

Both Republicans and Democrats joined in paying tribute to Representative Perry for his fairness and justice in the four years he served as Master in Chancery. One of the Judges commented that not one complaint has been made to the Court concerning Rep. Perry during his whole term as Master.

New York State to Erect $1,600,000 Amphitheatre at "Nation's Fair of 1939"

NEW YORK (Special).—The State of New York, it is disclosed in architectural drawings made public, will be represented officially at the New York World's Fair of 1939 by a $1,600,000 combined marine amphitheatre and exhibit building of many distinctive features largely designed for the presentation of master stage spectacles and compelling exhibits by state departments and 62 counties.

The accompanying photograph shows how a total of 16,500 spectators can be afforded unobstructed view of an island stage of magnificent proportions set 100 feet offshore in an exposition lagoon and to be screened, between acts, by sheets of water blown by compressed air from the lake and made doubly effective by the projection upon them of light and color. Above and behind the tier of seats shown is a broad promenade 800 feet long which will afford a view of the whole exposition and the 280 acres of lake-shore amusement zone.

The insert shows the exhibit pavilion facade and the forward position of the grand reception hall above which will be a circular auditorium seating 1000 persons. Under the amphitheatre, on two floor levels, 70,000 square feet of space is provided for New York State exhibits.

The New York State Legislature this spring appropriated $2,200,000 for official participation in the $125,000,000 exposition. Enactment provides for the building, for a $250,000 exhibit and for $350,000 maintenance and operation. Contracts for construction of the dual purpose structure, a permanent addition to the site, will be let soon in public bidding by prequalified bidders.

MISTRESS SPRING WAKES ALL THE SLEEPERS.

Wake up, wake up, you drowsy heads! Wake up, wake up, and leave your beds! The gladdest time of all the year Has come, for Mistress Spring is here!

CHEERFUL Robin was singing it up in the Old Orchard. Little Friend the Song Sparrow was singing it down along the edge of the Laughing Brook. Winsome Bluebird was whistling it from the top of the Big Hickory over by the Smiling Pool. Blacky the Crow was cawing it from a fence-post on the edge of Farmer Brown's cornfield. Danny Meadow Mouse was shouting it in a funny little squeaky voice down on the Green Meadows. Even Sammy Jay was screaming it through the Green Forest. And over in the dear Old Briar Patch, Peter Rabbit was saying it over and over to himself as he thumped and thumped for pure joy.

It was true. Sweet, beautiful Mistress Spring had arrived. Cheerful Robin and Little Friend had come with her, and so had Honker the Wild Goose. It was his voice coming down from high, high up in the blue sky that had told the glad news. He hasn't a sweet voice. Oh, my, no! The voice of Honker is anything but sweet. And yet it is good, wonderfully good to hear after the long, cold days of winter, for every one knows when they hear it that Mistress Spring has arrived. You see, long, long ago Mistress Spring went to Old Mother Nature and asked her for a trumpet, some one whose voice was strong, to travel up from the far away South with her and tell all the world of her coming, and Honker the Goose was chosen because his wings are strong and he flies high, and because his voice is strong, and the sound of it carries far. And from that day to this when the voice of Honker the Goose is heard, every one knows that Mistress Spring has arrived.

Now, Mistress Spring wastes no time, for she has a great deal to do, and the very first thing is to waken all the sleepers whom gentle Sister South Wind has not already awakened. Peter Rabbit never could understand how she does it because there are so many sleepers—little people who wear fur, little people who wear neither fur nor feathers, but whom we call bugs, and all the little and big plants. There are so many, many of them who sleep all winter long that it has always seemed to Peter as if Mistress Spring must miss some of them. But she never does.

So now that Mistress Spring really had arrived Peter was too happy to sit still. He just had to hurry around and greet his friends as fast as they waked. Bobby Coon and Uncle Billy Possum had crawled out of their hollow trees just after Winsome Bluebird arrived. Now Peter felt sure his old friend Johnny Chuck would be crawling out, and he hurried up to the corner of the Old Orchard where Johnny's house is. Sure enough, there sat Johnny on his doorstep taking a sun-bath. He looked very thin, not at all as he had looked when Peter last saw him. He grinned at Peter and stretched to get the kinks out of his legs and the first thing he asked was if Peter knew where there was any tender young clover. But Peter didn't, because, you know, the clover had only just begun to wake up, and hadn't had time to grow. But he knew where there was some last year's clover that had kept green under the snow, and Johnny said that that would do, because he was so hungry that he could eat almost anything.

While they were talking a merry little voice shouted from the stone and he looked as pert and smart wall. There sat Striped Chipmunk, and saucy as ever. He wasn't thin like Johnny Chuck. You see he had filled his storehouse, which opens right out of his bedroom, with plenty of good things in the fall, and he had waked up in the winter often enough to eat what he needed and now had plenty left over.

"Are you glad Mistress Spring has come?" asked Peter.

Striped Chipmunk whisked round and round after his tail until they all laughed to see him. "So glad that I can't keep still!" he cried.

FIRST-AID TO AILING HOUSE

By ROGER B. WHITMAN

CARING FOR RUSTIC WORK

NOT long ago I received a letter explaining the purchase of a playhouse built of rustic work; of bark covered saplings. Within a week after it was put up, insects were found flying around inside, and were soon so thick that the children refused to play in it. Little piles of sawdust were found all over it inside and out. I was asked how the insects could be destroyed. There could be but one answer: that wood, so thoroughly infested with boring insects, could not be reclaimed.

Many kinds of insects thrive in wood. There are borers of many classes that develop from eggs to the adult beetle inside of wood, and that as larvae are very destructive. Other kinds of insects make borings just under the bark. Because of these insects, rustic work may not be practical, for there is no sure way to protect it against insect attack. One signal is the loosening of bark. When this is noticed, and borings are found underneath the bark, all the bark should be stripped off and the bare wood given a coat or two of spar varnish.

When there are holes in the wood, an insect killing liquid can be squirted in with a medicine dropper or otherwise; kerosene and carbon tetrachloride are effective. In one case that I know, the framework of a chair was made of heavy sticks which evidently contained borers. A one-inch hole was bored straight down into each timber from the top to a depth of four inches. Carbon tetrachloride was poured into these holes, and the openings were closed with corks. Soaking into the wood, the liquid worked nearly the length of the timbers, killing all worms and eggs that were within.

Garden furniture is usually taken into a cellar for the winter. This is not advisable, for in the warm atmosphere, any borers that may be in the wood will continue their work. There is far better protection in leaving garden furniture outdoors through the cold weather. They should be in a dry place, but exposed to low temperature.

THIS HURTS THE MOST

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THEY hurt us most a way they never dream. Not with their words, however harsh they seem, But with their lives, the follies they pursue, That hurt the heart more than their words could do. Some strange rebellion in the girl and boy Now makes our special fear their special joy.

They hurt us most a way they never guess. Not with their words, but with immodest dress, Immoral pleasures, for these deeds are done By someone's daughter or by someone's son. But yesterday we stood beside their cot; It hurts to feel they have so soon forgot.

They hurt us most a way they never know. Not with their words, however hard the blow, But with the loss of many things we miss, The dreams of parents that have come to this. Of all we taught them, nothing has prevailed—

It hurts us most to know how we have failed.

MANNERS OF THE MOMENT

By YEAN

© By The Associated Newspapers

SOMETIMES, when you're walking along with a male escort, you just happen to see something terribly interesting in a window, and you just happen to stop for a second. And then in your excitement you grab the nearest arm and say, "Oh, look, Johnny. Isn't that the prettiest little coffee pot?" . . . only to look up and discover that you are grasping the arm of a strange and startled man. Your boy friend, you can see by now, is plodding on ahead of you.

We're inclined to think it's partly the boy friend's fault. He really should be more conscious of you than to go marching on down the street that way.

But once you've gotten into the pickle, you might just as well make the best of it. You should let go of the strange arm. But you should smile unconcernedly and say, "You do think it's a nice coffee pot, don't you? I simply love it." And with that you can wave the stranger a cheery good-by and catch up with your own Johnny.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Dean of the Moody Bible Institute

Lesson for August 1

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 13:17-22; 14:10-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—And the Lord shall guide thee continually.—Isaiah 58:11.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Shining Cloud.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Forward March!
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How God Leads Today.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—A Nation Following God's Leadership.

The destinies of the nations are in the hands of God. Mighty are the warriors, learned are the advisors, clever are the diplomats, and when they have exercised all their human ingenuity and have only brought themselves and their nations to "Wits' End Corner," God must lay hold and bring order out of chaos. Happy is that people where rulers recognize God and seek his guidance.

Israel through the human instrumentality of Moses was ruled by God. He had prepared for them a leader and had prepared the people to follow that leader. Now he brings them forth out of their bondage.

I. "God Led Them" (Exod. 13:17-22).

It is significant that he did not lead them by the easy way to Canaan, by the short route through Philistia but rather led them south into the wilderness.

How often it seems to us that we could improve on God's ways. Suffering, sorrow, affliction, we would shun and would go the quick easy road, where all is bright and happy. But God's way is the best way, even though it leads through the wilderness.

His purpose for Israel was that they might not be disheartened by the warlike Philistines (v. 17). Thus it was really his loving-kindness that sent them the long way. See Prov. 14:12, and Prov. 10:29.

Another and equally important purpose of God was that the undisciplined multitude might in the trials and responsibilities of their journey through the wilderness be prepared to enter the promised land.

The miraculous pillar of cloud and fire was God's constant assurance of his presence with them.

Hardly had Israel withdrawn, and the wall over the death of the first-born in Egypt ceased when Pharaoh regretted that he had permitted his slaves to escape, and set out in pursuit. He represents the world, the flesh, and the Devil in their relentless efforts to hold back those who would follow the Lord. Making a decision for Christ, and experiencing his redemptive power does not mean that the enemy has given up. Temptations, doubts, trials, will come. When you come up out of Egypt do not be surprised if Pharaoh pursues you.

The situation could not have been more difficult. Hemmed in by the Red sea before them—a group of men not trained in warfare—with women and children to care for, and God forgotten in their disbelief and discouragement.

Moses, who was their great leader in the hour of triumph, tastes the bitterness of their hatred and unbelief in the hour of trial. A leader of men for God must know that God has called him and have faith in his almighty power, for in the time of crises he will find those whom he leads ready to condemn him. What is the solution?

III. "Stand Still" (vv. 13,14).

Sublime in his confidence in God, Moses bids the people to cease their petty complaining, to abandon their plans for saving themselves. "Stand still, and see the salvation of the Lord" (v. 13).

Perhaps these lines will be read by some Christian who is fretting and fussing, bearing all the burdens of the universe on his shoulders. Be still, my friend. God is able to care for you, and for all the burdens which you are needlessly trying to bear. Trusting God will result in real spiritual progress.

IV. "Go Forward" (v. 15).

Humanly it was impossible, but "with God all things are possible" (Mark 10:27). When every circumstance says "Stop," when the counsel of men is against attempting anything, when human leadership seems to be lacking—just at that hour God may say, "go forward."

If every true Christian who reads these words will respond to the Lord's command, "Go forward," hundreds of locked church doors will be opened, new Sunday schools will gather children to hear God's Word, men and women will be won for Christ. Let us "go forward." The God who brought Israel dryshod through the Red sea is just the same today!

Household Helps

Do you know the proper thing to say when you sit on a wad of chewing gum?

If your suit is washable, here is the correct command—if you want to get rid of the chewing gum and not your garment:

"Bring me an egg white, some soap and some lukewarm water. Then stand back and watch me soften the gum with the egg white—so! And finally wash it completely away with the soapy water."

If your suit isn't washable, the fabric-saving element is carbon tetrachloride, which will remove all traces of stain.

The authority for these points of chewing gum etiquette is a new booklet called "Handy Helps for Homemakers," which has been prepared by a group of home economics authorities. This booklet is a convenient, compact handbook of practical remedies for the most common household problems. It is divided into four sections: laundering (which includes notably stain-removal formulae, but also detailed advice on the proper way to wash various fabrics); home lighting; heating; and cooking.

The writers of the "Handy Helps for Homemakers" booklet have confined the chapter on "Cooking" to an informative discussion of meat-selection rules, suggestions for improving actual cooking technique and a summary of the merits and problems of home canning.

A copy of the "Handy Helps for Homemakers" book can be secured by sending 5 cents to cover postage and handling to Miss Boyd, 210 S. Desplains St., Chicago, Ill.—Adv.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRUCKART
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—Many times in these columns I have had occasion to write in praise of Senator Joe Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader in the senate. His magnificent qualities, his capacity as a statesman and the regard with which he was held by Republicans and Democrats alike were such that further praise from this pen would be of little value. Suffice it to say that in Joe Robinson's death the nation is the loser because "he fought the good fight."

But Senator Robinson's sudden death a few days ago has precipitated a political condition of gravest importance. Although none of us who knew him nor those with whom he was associated in an official capacity could have foreseen his sudden death, I think it is proper to say that the passing of Joe Robinson may have more far-reaching influence upon his country's history than all of his long and distinguished career in public life. That is to say, fate possibly has turned in this instance to the role it sometimes plays—the role of master strategist.

The question may be asked: Why does the death of one man become so important?

The answer is simple. Joe Robinson was the field marshal for the Roosevelt administration. Particularly, he was the field marshal in the greatest legislative battle to reach the floors of congress since the days of slavery, and this coincided with the daring adventure of an epochal administration.

President Roosevelt leaned upon Senator Robinson to put through the senate a bill that would permit the Chief Executive to appoint additional justices of his own choosing to membership in the Supreme court of the United States. He leaned upon the Arkansas senator for many other things as well, but it seems to be the consensus of opinion that Mr. Roosevelt's administration may well stand or fall by the success or failure of his program to reorganize the judiciary of the United States. It seems further that if the President fails to obtain congressional approval for this plan which would give the President domination over the court system of the country, he will have lost control of the legislative branch of the government for the remainder of his term. Few Presidents have been able to carry on successfully without the co-operation of the legislative branch.

It is too early, of course, to say whether the death of Senator Robinson means defeat for the court packing program. Nevertheless, most of the astute political observers in Washington—indeed, many of the President's own party in the senate—believe that the passing of the Democratic leader was a fatal blow to the President's power in congress. This results from the fact that Joe Robinson was able to mold together many groups and cliques and hold them by the sheer power of his lovable personality in a cohesive, workable unit.

The country never will know how well and faithfully Joe Robinson fought for the President and his policies. I have said in these columns heretofore and I repeat that I do not believe Senator Robinson favored all of the New Deal policies, in his heart. He was progressive but he had sound ideas; he stood by the President and the New Deal with courage and capacity, but on many occasions, I have reason to believe, he fought for those principles because he believed he should either fight as a member of his party or retire. Further, he knew that if he would retire he would not have the opportunity nor the influence to persuade the radical wing of the New Dealers to propose reasonable policies. In other words, the late Democratic leader was attempting to be a leader in fact as well as in name and many are the indications where he was able to pull the theorists and the radical New Dealers back from the brink of political destruction.

In view of the facts I have reported and the observations I have made above, it becomes perfectly plain that the President is in a position where he can lose the present court battle with ease. In fact, there are many observers who believe the court legislation will have to be abandoned and that congress will be quickly overwhelmed by that annual desire of representatives and senators to conclude their work and adjourn.

Let us review the situation as regards the court legislation. The President got off to a very bad start when the original bill to add six new justices to the Supreme court was presented. The original reasons he gave for demanding the new power he sought were shattered within a few days after the draft of the bill reached the Capitol. He was forced to abandon them. Mr. Roosevelt then came forward with a second set of reasons, namely, that the Supreme court as at present constituted could not and would not hold some of his social legislation constitutional. That set of reasons was knocked into a cocked hat when the Supreme court upheld the Washington state minimum wage law, the Wagner labor relations act and the social security taxes. Then came the resignation of Justice Van Devanter. Justice Van Devanter was one of the men whom Mr. Roosevelt had in mind as unwilling and unlikely to see social legislation through the same glasses as Mr. Roosevelt saw the situation in the country.

The Van Devanter resignation gave the President an opportunity to appoint a new member to the court. It also gave the senate an opportunity to burst forth with expressions of its own ideas concerning the type of man who should succeed Justice Van Devanter and the senators were not backward in promoting the name of the Democratic leader, Senator Robinson. But Mr. Roosevelt thus far has failed to fill the vacancy, and this failure has been interpreted by the opposition among the President's own party as an unwillingness to select anyone but a radical for the highest court. In any event, those opposed to the court bill contend that the President's delay constitutes only another reason why he should accept "the inevitable defeat" of the court revision program.

When it became apparent that the original bill for six new justices could not be passed because the Democratic-dominated senate judiciary committee reported the bill with a scathing denunciation, the late Senator Robinson astutely offered a substitute bill in the nature of a compromise. This substitute bore the authorship of Senators Logan of Kentucky and Hatch of New Mexico. Even the substitute which provided for one additional judge a year until the Supreme court numbered eleven members has received the same bitter criticism that characterized the first measure. Many members of the senate say they will fight it as long as they would have fought the original because it will give the Chief Executive control of the Supreme court just as the earlier one would have done.

President Roosevelt vetoed a little known and little discussed bill the other day. It was known as "H. R. 4408, An Act to Provide for the Renewal of Star-Route Contracts at Four Year Intervals." The title, of course, will mean little to most of those who read these lines. But, this was a bill intended to do justice to those underprivileged classes about which Mr. Roosevelt has often spoken in his fireside chats over the radio. The men who would have benefited by this piece of legislation were the star route carriers of the mails—the service that dates back to the stagecoach days of America and the service from which originated the Postal department's famous phrase, "the mails must go through." The star route is the only means by which a good many thousand persons are able to receive mails on anything like a modern basis because this service reaches the out-of-the-way inland towns where railroads are not yet and possibly never will be in operation.

I watched this legislation go through the house without dissenting vote; I saw Senator McKellar, Democrat, of Tennessee, attack the bill in vicious language and then I saw the senate pass it by a vote of nearly two to one. In addition, I know that the representatives of these little known carriers (little known except to those whom they directly serve) had tried for a number of years to obtain a basis of pay that will let them live. They finally were able to convince Postmaster General Farley that unless they were paid more money the number that would go broke in carrying out their contracts would be amazingly large. I have not the slightest doubt that this group ought to be paid more money for the work they do because their present basis of compensation is shamefully low—so low that if they were members of a labor union, they would all go on strike.

No change has been made in the basis of compensation or in the method of contracting for this service since it was organized in 1845, except in minor ways. Three quarters of a century or more is a long, long time. The President's action in vetoing this legislation, therefore, is very difficult to understand. His action is made the more inconsistent, many persons believe, because the additional cost to the government would be insufficient to maintain the smallest unit of the hundred New Deal agencies which the President has created.

GARRISON rapped once on the door, heard, "Come!" and entered. In a chair across the one-room apartment Lamour sat. His feet were on the window sill and a bottle of cheap whiskey was beside him.

Seeing Garrison, he jumped up and started forward, exclaiming: "Well, well! This is a pleasant surprise, Louis."

"Never mind that," the publicity man said bluntly; "I'm not making a social call."

Unruffled, Lamour pursued: "All right; if it's business, so much the better. Have a chair."

Garrison tossed his hat on a table and sauntered over, eyes narrowly scanning the other man's face.

"How much you been drinking?" he demanded. Hurt dignity came into Lamour's expression.

"Really, my dear fellow! Can't a chap have a little liquor in evidence without being accused of sousing?" Garrison nodded shortly and sat down.

"Okay—guess I caught you in time, at that," he remarked.

Lamour remained standing and the publicity man went on: "Listen, I'm going to talk straight; I'd like the same from you. Exactly what's your game with Beth Marvin?"

"Game?" The question came after a brief pause and its tone was blank. "Afraid I don't quite follow you."

Garrison smiled with one side of his face and said:

"Yeah—I expected that. Well, we'll try it another way then. But suppose you plant yourself first. This may take a little time."

Lamour bowed slightly and went to the chair he had previously occupied. The publicity man continued:

"Look here, Rolf—what I want to know is how much good do you think it'll do you to get her in a mess? She's twenty and just starting; you're fifty and finished. Oh, wait a minute—" as Lamour scowled and began to cut in—"lay off the posing. That isn't my idea. Everyone in Hollywood knows it, except you."

"Ten years ago you were big and pulled down big money. But you got rid of it fast, and today you're lucky to land enough bits to hang on in the game. Beth Marvin's just got a nice contract, she's in a romance with Don Orlando that gets plenty of front page and that the public likes. Within a year she'll have star billing—if she stays out of trouble. Apparently you're not going to let her. Now come on—what's the answer?"

In an indolent drawl Lamour told him:

"Sorry; I'm still at sea. Just why you should assume that my close friendship with the young lady has an ulterior motive is beyond me. And—pardon the frank confession—I'm also somewhat at a loss to fathom your concern with all this."

Garrison leaned suddenly forward, rasping:

"Cut that! You know damned well why I'm in it. This Marvin-Orlando thing's all my work. I started it—built it up—made it famous. They're an ideal match, too. Youth, looks, future—they've got everything in common. Why—"

"Did it ever occur to you," the actor broke in smoothly, "that perhaps Beth had a right to live honestly—to take my love when she found it, because she wanted it?"

With a snort of disgust Garrison was up, towering over him.

"Listen to me, you cheap slicker," he shot; "I've heard all the lies I'm going to. Love—nuts! You've schemed a young, impressionable kid into infatuation, hoping you can use her to help get yourself back to the top. Lamour, there's only one word for a guy like you—rotten!"

The actor shoved the chair back and rose. His tone was cool.

"I really see no point in prolonging this interview. Moreover, I've a pressing engagement. You'll excuse me?"

A second's pause; Garrison sagged a little. At last he spoke without force.

"All right—you've called me and I'm caught short. There's no way I can make you leave her alone, if you won't." He straightened, gaze steady, and went on: "But I'll take one more play. Rolf, she can't pull you up, but you'll drag her down. Sooner or later there'll be scandal, wrecking her career—probably her whole life. And you're washed up; you have nothing to offer her. If you actually care a hoot in hell about the girl, you'll consider those things before it's too late. I suppose it sounds like I'm asking you to be noble or something but it's not all that; there's nothing but grief in it for you either. When we come right down to facts and truth, I think you must know that, too."

Momentarily, the actor didn't speak. His eyes, half-shut and speculative, looked away.

"Putting it that way," he said at last, "is a little different. I didn't mind your prattle about Orlando, because he's—well, it doesn't matter. But this other notion..." He broke off, was again briefly silent, then glanced at his wrist watch and added:

"I must go now—half an hour late already. I don't know what to say to you. I—"

A quick soft knock sounded. Lamour wheeled, asking:

"Who is it?"

"Beth! I waited so long, dear. I was worried."

Just an instant the man stayed rigidly still. Then his arm flung out, sprawled Garrison into a chair. Grabbing the bottle, he took one long drink and stuck it into the publicity man's hand, muttering:

"Just sit there and don't say anything."

In three strides he was across the room. He stopped, unbuttoned his collar, mussed his hair, and yanked the door wide. A slight, fresh-looking girl with chestnut curls stood framed in the opening. Lamour lurched against the wall and stayed there.

"Well, whadda y'want?" he demanded thickly. "Wha's idea uh chasin' after me? Cantcha take th' hint when a man stands y'up?"

Beth Marvin took a single step forward, horror and concern blended in her face.

"Rolf!" she cried. "Are you ill? What—"

"Aw, scram!" He flapped one hand almost in her face. "Get wise t' y'self, baby, get wise. This's gonna be a swell party, soon's th' dames get here. 'S no place for brats who ain't weaned yet."

With a rough shove he sent the girl backward, reached for the door and slammed it. A second of dead silence was followed by a sob from beyond the panels that had agony in it.

Garrison put the whiskey down and got to his feet. Lamour hadn't moved. The publicity man took his hat and went slowly over to him.

"Old boy," he began, "that was one damned fine—"

"Skip it, will you!" Abruptly the actor swung around and stalked to the windows. Garrison shrugged, mumbled an uncertain, "Well, adios," and went out.

When the latch clicked, Lamour walked to the telephone, picked it up, and dialed HO 1789. After a moment he said:

"Hello—Lamour speaking. Your job's done. I'll expect you this evening with the five hundred—in cash. Yes, decidedly thorough! . . . what? . . . Oh, I'm sure to be home. Absolutely. Just walk right in, Orlando; don't bother about knocking."

He replaced the instrument, gazed thoughtfully down on it, and then chuckled. The sound was rather dry. After that, Rolf Lamour crossed to the chiffonier near the door, took a blue-steel automatic pistol from its top compartment, and shot himself exactly in the temple.

Gas Dogs Were Trained to Attack Meter Reader

Way back in 1884 there was a different kind of dog problem. According to a reprint from the New York Times of that date, published in a history of the Consolidated Gas company of New York by Fred L. Collins, that was a problem that was a problem. This is what the Times had to say about it:

"The plan of training small dogs to bite all persons apparently bent on examining gas meters was originated in this city some years ago by an enterprising dog fancier. He made it his business to breed and train what he called gas dogs, and was equally successful with rough-haired terriers, bull terriers and spitz dogs."

"Excellent results have been attained by the use of gas dogs. An amiable Christian lady residing on Thirty-fifth street in this city has no less than 43 samples of trousers collected by her gas dogs in the course of five years. There are employed either permanently or for three days of each month fully 5,000 gas dogs in the region about Bleeker street, and we shall be safe in assuming that at least 4,500 gas inspectors are bitten in the leg or trousers each month."

"It could hardly be said that gas dogs are not wonderfully soothing to the householders' minds. There are householders who make it a plan to remain at home all day on the day when the gas inspector is expected, merely to enjoy the yell of the inspector with the gas dog's teeth in his calf or to listen to inspector's language as a fresh hole is made in his trousers."

"Hundreds of our leading citizens, including clergymen and professional philanthropists, who own or employ gas dogs, have testified that they can pay their gas bills with comparative equanimity through the recollections of the legs and trousers the gas dogs have sampled."

Birth of Virginia Dare

Virginia Dare, the first English child born in this country, was born on August 18, 1587, on Roanoke island, N. C., then part of Virginia, and was named, as was the state of Virginia, after Elizabeth the Virgin Queen. The child's parents were members of the "lost colony," which was established on Roanoke island on July 22, 1587, under the sponsorship of Sir Walter Raleigh, to whom Elizabeth had granted a patent for colonization in the New World. John White, grandfather of Virginia Dare, headed that group of settlers. He went back to England for supplies and when he returned to the island in 1591 he found no trace of the colony. The more than 100 members were never heard from again.

Sew-Your-Own Style News

HERE is something practical, something sweet, and something ornamental for your mid-summer wardrobe.

Simple As Toast and Coffee.

At breakfast time you need the crisp shipshape style of the little model at the left. He'll proffer that eight o'clock kiss with alacrity and fervor when you greet your hubby in this pleasant surprise. Make it of a gay tub-well cotton for greatest usability.

Lines That Live.

For luncheon in town, for cutting up touches on the Club veranda you can't find a more fetching frock than the one in the center. It combines sweet swing with nonchalance. Never has a designer given more flattering shoulder and waist lines than these. "And what about the skirt?" you ask. Obviously it has the most finished flare in town. Chiffon, acetate, or sports silk will do justice to both the flare and you, Milady.

And If Autumn Comes.

It's a help to have a dress like the one at the right around for it gives that feeling of preparedness. Prepared in case a cool Fallish day or evening is slipped in without warning. Then, too, it won't be long before cool days will be the rule rather than the exception. So it would seem a logical as well as a fashionable step to set about making this elegant model right away. Be first in your crowd to show what's new under the fashion sun for Fall.
